The Fritz Bauer Blog is the Internet journal of the Fritz Bauer Forum.

In (film) interviews, texts, and podcasts, we provide information about civil engagement for human rights and the resistance against injustice. We vigorously support victims, survivors, and their relatives, fighting for their rights through PR work.

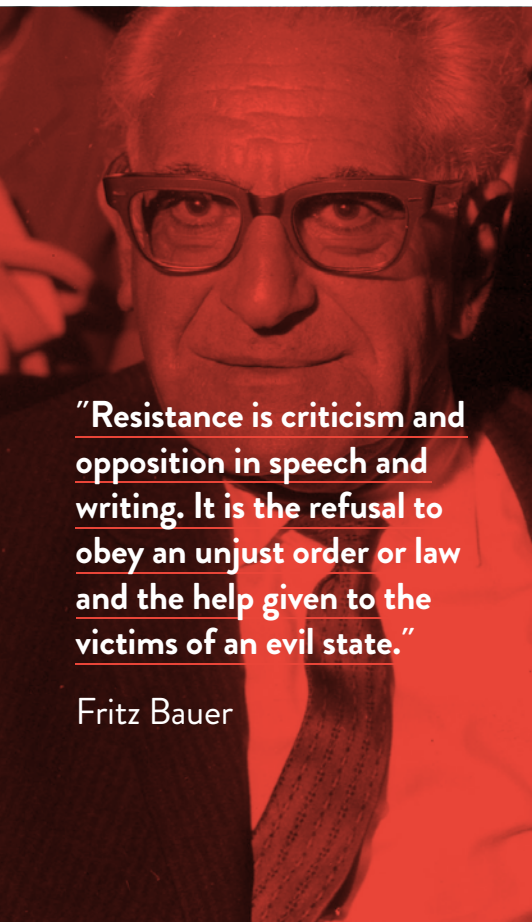

For us, the survivors' cry of "never again!" means saying "no!" whenever injustice is done.

WE SUPPORT THE DEFENDERS OF HUMAN RIGHTS

We trust in the power of good arguments and democratic debate. We view democracy as the right and duty of all people to resist when human dignity is violated.

We are motivated by the history of human rights. Our mission is to support the diverse and often self-sacrificing resistance work performed by individuals who are fighting for greater justice, lasting peace, and a humane legal system.

Through our contributions, we strengthen the right to information and truth.

"Resistance is criticism and opposition in speech and writing. It is the refusal to obey an unjust order or law and the help given to the victims of an evil state."
